A Poet's Guide to the Lockdown. As a poet who also runs, I've spent a fair bit of time thinking and writing about the connections between athleticism and art; how both are competitive but ultimately solitary, joyful yet defiant, demanding resolve and routine, but also reflection. So how can poetry, or simply writing creatively, help a runner right now?

Introduction. Poetry comes in many different forms — from simple, catchy rhymes to epic works that contain the elements of a story. A poem can be social commentary, an attempt to describe something that eludes description, a declaration of love, or a sentiment expressed on a greeting card. And with poetry, the structure and arrangement of the words often have just as much significant as the words themselves.
